LOCAL MATTERS.

Of Chesterfield county has passed over the river. Captain D. M. Goode is dead. After a painful and lingering illness of more than one month he breathed his last on August 13, 1883. In the vigor of manhod, in the zenith of his popularity, and with a bright hope of immortality, he was taken from his family, from his friends, and from his country. No man was more beloved and respected in the county of the man. Leaving home as soon as the step to general the mortality of the man. Leaving home as soon as the toesin of war was sounded, he remained in the army until the surrender at Appomattox, distinguishing himself by a faithful and fearless discharge of duty. He was wounded two or three times while in the service, but considering his wounds only marks of henor, he returned to his command as soon as he was able to perform the duties of a soldier. He left the wards of the soldier, wards excepted from the market, house of the same and were received with a salvo of artillery, and afterwards excepted from the market, house command as soon as he was able to perform the duties of a soldier. He left the army with the rank of captain, and with the universal esteem of his comrades.

Returning home at the close of the war, he found his property destroyed and his prospects of success dark indeed. With his natural hopefulness, and with a spirit dauntless and unsubdued, he beat his sword into a plowshare and his spear into a pruning-hook. Success crowned his unremitting labors and made his farm, which he found a wilderness, blossom as a rose. His fellow-citizens desiring to honor such CEL. a man, elected him supervisor of the coun-old ty for four successive terms. As chairman of the Board of Supervisors he reflected honor upon his county and protected the interest of her people. He was nominated as a candidate for the Legislature in 1881,

In the evening the soldiers again paraded in the Capitol Square, and the artillery fired the evening salute, after the best alient was dismissed, and AN OLD-TIME FOURTH OF JULY.

READING THE DECLARATION.

The house was filled to overflowing, and hundreds of people stood on the sidewalks of the street near by. The centre of the church was occupied by the military, the side pews and galleries by ladies and citizens generally. The whole scene was animating and impressive, and was highly enjoved by those present.

According to previous arrangement Captain Thomas H. Ellis was to read the Declaration of American Independence, and Mr. John S. Caskie was to deliver the Fourth-of-July oration. Both of these gentlemen were escorted to the stand by a committee composed of the captains of the companies. The stands of colors belonging to the companies draped the pulpit on city.

The Seized Schooner.

Yesterday morning Mr. J. A. Hopkins, dockmaster, eailed on Major Poe in reference to the schooner E. J. Erwin remaining in the dock. Mr. Hopkins said he united to the sudience for upwards of the business of the Almighty upon the blessings of the Almighty upon the blessings of the Almighty upon the struck up "Hail, Columbia, Happy Land," after which Captain Ellis arose and presented to the schooner of the Declaration with a chaste and manly address. He had a fine voice, and gave to the reading the fullest ing in the dock. Mr. Hopkins said he united to the city from a visit to Ohio.

The Seized Schooner.

Yesterday morning Mr. J. A. Hopkins, dockmaster, cailed on Major Poe in reference to our Richmond manufacturers.

The Tobacco Exchange some weeks ago adopted strong resolutions setting forth the various reasons why this city and district should not be attached to the Second. These ceremones over at the church, the line was again formed and the military marched to the Capitel Square, where the mid-day salute was freed; after which the Chesterfold Desgeons with their guests.

Captain McClelland, of the Rifles, returned his acknowledgement in behalf of his company for the hospitable and friendly recep tion extended them, and gave in reply to Captain Munford this toast: "The Sons of the Old Dominion—Worthy Sons of Patriot Sires: The mantles of the fathers of the Republic have fallen upon the shoul-ders of those eminently qualified to wear them; they will be handed down safely to posterity, and for ages to come this glorious day will be remembered and com-

Colonel's hope will be verified. Private George F. Pearson offered this: Colonel Thomas P. Bigger-Big-Big-The wine was now flowing freely, and Mr. Thomas Ritchie, springing to his feet, exclaimed, "Who has a right to be bigger than one of the Petersburg volunteers."

Mr. Caskie, the orator of the day, in response to calls, said: "Citizen soldiers, sponse to calls, said: "Citizen soldiers, if ever they be called upon to meet a foreign foe, may they be animated by the same spirit that burned in the bosom of brave old Starke when, glancing at a British army, he said, 'I'll whip those fellows, or Mary Starke's a widow tonight."

Captain John D. Munford obtained the floor after awhile, and said he had been remond. He arose at once, and, in behalf of his company, said that he knew not the fair lady who had been so kind to the Blues, but he would answer for them: that if she were The Parade of the Military, the Firing of tra kiss; if a widow, the Biues would pro-Salutes, Ceremonies and Services at the vide her a husband worthy of such a wife; Second Baptist Church—Speeches from Cap- and if she be maiden fair, then she should select for herself the flower of the flock.

THE SHADOW OF A HISTORIC EVENT. The other toast sent by this patriotic lady, whose name unfortunately has been lost to history, indicates that as far back as the days about which these lines are writ-ten there were those who feared a war between the States. The toast was read as "The Union-The citadel of the uni-

"The glittering flag that o'er us shines
Is lit with stars of kindred light.
And, hlended, weave in glowing lines
Those stripes that speak a nation's might."
As the voice of Captain John D. Munford ceased, Mr. Thomas Ritchie jumped to his feet, and in a loud voice exclaimed,

The result shows that they were right, and can only increase the high opinion the community always had of the officers. Such an instance as a "broken" bank paying all its debts, with interest, is unknown in the history of banking, and goes to show the integrity of its management. It is now desirable that depositors should call at once for their money, so that the trustee may be able to settle his accounts and turn the affairs of the bank over to its proper officers.

THE ST. LOUIS DEFEAT THE VIRGINIAS-A LARGE ATTENDANCE.

The game of base-ball yesterday afternoon between the St. Louis (Association) Club and the Virginias was witnessed by between 2,500 and 3,000 persons, among whom were quite a large number of ladies. As is well known the visiting Club is a first-class organization, having few equals in the country as skilfui ball-players, and for that reason it would be unfair to the Virginias, who are comparatively new to the business, to judge them by the same the business, to judge them by the same the summent of the properties of the summent of the s Virginias, who are comparatively new to the business, to judge them by the same standard that would apply to professional clubs. Under the circumstances they played a very fair game, although it was evident from the start that they were no match for their more experienced competitors. Ferguson did not seem to be benefited by his rest. While his pitching was quite as strong as usual, it lacked in accuracy. Several of the visitors got first base on called balls, which proved a serious disadvantage to the home team.
